NAVIGATION AND PRINTING

The printed contents links to every office and election cycle. The PDF outline continues through state and individual district or statewide race. Race blocks run continuously instead of forcing one state or contest onto its own page. Every candidate record retained in the archive appears with party, votes, share, and incumbent status when available.

Special-election records remain winner-level when the underlying archive contains no complete candidate tally. A dash means unavailable, not zero. Provisional or uncalled contests are labeled and are not converted into certified outcomes.

Administration Analysis

Lincoln's election record begins with a four-way 1860 presidential contest in which he won 180 of 303 electoral votes while receiving 39.75 percent of the structured national popular vote. Secession then removed much of the southern delegation from the 37th Congress, whose official election-day House division was 108 Republicans, 44 Democrats, and 31 Union or independent members. The 1862-63 cycle reduced Republicans to 85 House seats against 72 Democrats and 27 others, while the Senate opened with twenty vacancies. In 1864, Lincoln won reelection on the National Union ticket, 212 electoral votes to George B. McClellan's 21; the 39th House opened with 136 Republicans, 38 Democrats, and 19 Union or independent members, and the Senate with twenty-three vacancies.

SPECIAL-ELECTION REGISTER

The voting-seat House vacancy register contains twenty-three records: eighteen in the 37th Congress and five in the 38th. Eight moved between the broad Democratic, Republican, and Union/other columns. Contest decisions, Senate selections, new-state admissions, and territorial delegates are excluded.

Federal Special-Election Winner Register

The register uses the official annotated rosters for the 37th and 38th Congresses as the control. Dates are the successor's formal installation or other controlled roster date. It includes only new voting-seat House vacancy elections during Lincoln's presidency, while excluding Senate selections, territorial delegates, new-state admissions, ordinary delayed elections already in the cycle ledger, and contest decisions that changed who was seated without a new popular election.

NOTE. Multi-seat statewide at-large election; seat 2 of 3. The candidate slate and ballot totals are shared across the companion seat records and counted once in aggregate vote statistics. The structured source marks two Union Democratic candidates elected, but the official annotated 37th-Congress roster controls: Timothy G. Phelps, Aaron A. Sargent, and Frederick F. Low were the three California representatives returned from the statewide ballot. Low's third-seat claim was initially rejected, then authorized by the act of June 2, 1862. Methodology and Sources

METHOD. Regular contests are grouped by office, cycle, state, and district. Every candidate object in the archive is rendered. Vote and percentage fields are printed only when present. Presidential electoral allocations, special circumstances, certification status, incumbency flags, and prior-cycle comparisons are retained where available. The dense layout removes forced state page breaks but does not remove race data.

KNOWN LIMITS

- The 1860 presidential election was a four-candidate Electoral College contest. The National Archives controls the allocation: Abraham Lincoln 180, Stephen A. Douglas 12, John C. Breckinridge 72, and John Bell 39, out of 303 counted electoral votes.

- The structured 1860 national result object reports 183 electoral seats for Lincoln and nine for Douglas, effectively treating New Jersey as winner-take-all. This archive overrides that field with the official split: four New Jersey electors for Lincoln and three for Douglas, producing the correct 180-12 totals.

- South Carolina's legislature selected its eight presidential electors in 1860; no statewide presidential popular vote was held. Unavailable popular votes are not zero.

- New Jersey's 1860 popular return used a fusion slate and split its seven electoral votes. Fusion-elector ballot lines in New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania are preserved as source categories and are not assigned wholesale to Douglas, Breckinridge, Bell, or Lincoln.

- The official 1864 Electoral College count was Lincoln 212 to McClellan 21. Eleven Confederate states did not participate, and Nevada cast two of its three allocated votes because one elector did not vote.

- The structured 1864 popular-vote source preserves a Tennessee return and displays 2,240,639 votes for Lincoln and 1,811,068 for McClellan. The National Archives records Tennessee among the nonparticipating Confederate states, so no Tennessee electoral votes are credited.

- House elections were not held nationwide on one uniform date. The cycle ledgers include delayed state elections, loyal-state returns during secession, and records that did not produce a seated member.

- California's September 1861 at-large source record marks two Union Democratic candidates elected. The official 37th-Congress roster controls: Timothy G. Phelps, Aaron A. Sargent, and Frederick F. Low are used as the three seat winners. Low's third-seat claim was initially rejected and later authorized by statute.

- The 1860-61 ledger contains 180 ballots expanded to 183 seat cards: three California seats and two Minnesota seats are represented separately while their shared ballot totals are counted once. Three empty North Carolina or Virginia source cards are preserved as no-member-seated records rather than assigned invented winners.

- The 1862-63 ledger contains 182 ballots expanded to 184 seat cards because California elected three representatives from one statewide at-large ballot. Its official 38th-Congress control is D 72 - R 85 - Other 27.

- The 1864-65 source ledger contains 213 constituency cards. Twenty-one are returns from Alabama, North Carolina, and Virginia whose delegations were not seated in the 39th Congress; the official House profile—not a raw card count—controls the 193-member chamber division.

- West Virginia entered the Union on June 20, 1863, and Nevada on October 31, 1864. Their House returns are retained in the source cycle in which they appear; admission did not create a duplicate special-election record.

- All three Senate cycles preceded the Seventeenth Amendment. Senators were generally chosen by state legislatures, so no direct-popular Senate race ledger is printed; official opening Senate divisions are supplied in the administration-control table.

- The 23-entry House special-election register remains winner-level because the official annotated rosters do not publish complete candidate tallies. A dash means unavailable, not zero.

- Pure election-contest changes and loyal-state seating decisions are not counted as special elections unless a new popular election filled a voting-seat vacancy.
